City of Madison, IL Launches New Website

June 29, 2009 St. Louis, MO – The City of Madison, Illinois is pleased to announce the launch of a new website for the city, <http://www.CityofMadisonIL.com>.

Designed to be more informative, interactive and easier to use, the new site will give residents a guide to city management, personnel and departments, help to keep them up to date on what's going on in town, and add a valuable tool for keeping an open line of communication between residents and city government. "We're excited to present our citizens with a new site that not only has an exciting look, but with the continuing growth in technology and media it is also a great tool in allowing people to better communicate with city officials and each other," said Madison Mayor John Hamm III. "This is a very exciting day for the City of Madison."

Madison, Illinois is centrally located for the 3,000,000 people and 750,000 businesses in the metropolitan region. The City's neighborhoods, employment opportunities, regional recreation venues and national sporting events are minutes from downtown St. Louis. The community is linked to the world market through high speed internet access, as well as by it's position on the interstate highway system, Mississippi River and intercontinental rail lines. Madison is also only minutes from two international airports. For further information please contact the City of Madison Illinois.
